DETAILED ACTION

1. The prior office actions are incorporated herein by reference. In particular, the observations with respect to claim language, and response to previously presented arguments.

- Claims 1, 7, 8, 10, 11, 18-23, and 25 are amended.
- Claims 25-100 were canceled.
- Claims 1-25 have been considered.

2. Examiner withdraws rejection of claims 1-25 under 35 U.S.C 112 2nd paragraphs due to amendments by the applicant.

3. Examiner withdraws rejection of claims 1-25 under 35 U.S.C 101 due to amendments by the applicant.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed April 6, 2006 have been fully considered but they are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. However the examiner would like to add the following to clarify the office's position in regards to claimed invention. In response to applicant argument regarding rejection of independent claim 1 under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being obvious by Zucker.

6. The examiner believes that the argument that the applicant has put forward on regards to claim 1 is not persuasive. The reasoning behind the argument by the applicant is that the Zucker does not teach or fairly suggest the delivery of the goods or services in a digital or electronic means (Such as a song in MP3 file or MPEG movie) that is delivered over a communication network. However, one skilled in the art would know for the purpose of efficiency and knowing the public is always interested in rapid gratification, they would like to have their item such as a purchased digital or electronic goods as soon as possible. Knowing such need rather than having a CD or DVD delivered to a physical address the same goods can be transmitted over a network. And one skilled in the art would clearly know in order to make such delivery IP addresses are used that are very similar to using a physical address. Therefore, there would be a need for masking or anonymizing such a delivery address for privacy. At the same time Chung '7541 clearly teaches the delivery of such digital or electronic goods and keeping the user's information private.

A digital delivery or physical delivery do not distinguish the method or system as has been thought by Zucker '7617 as it would be performing the same task of removing the address and providing an alias for delivery that is only known to the third party that does the actual delivery to the end user.

7. As per dependent claims argued by the applicant, there are no substantial arguments presented and the arguments refer to the independent claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2005/0027617 A1 to Jeffrey M. Zucker et al in view of U.S. Patent Application Publication No.2004/0117451 to Michael Myung-Jin Chung.

10. As per claim 1, Zucker clearly teaches a method for making an anonymous computerized commerce transaction involving the delivery of digital merchandise comprising:

sending first sensitive information from a computer associated with a first entity to a computer associated with a first intermediate entity (See Zucker abstract, figures 1-12 and associated text, paragraphs [0015]-[0020];

processing said first sensitive information at said first intermediate entity computer (See Zucker paragraphs [0047] and [0059]-[0067]);

creating first non-sensitive information operable to approve said transaction by said first intermediate entity computer (See Zucker paragraphs [0048]-[0051]); sending said first non-sensitive information to a computer associated with a third entity operable to perform said transaction (See Zucker paragraphs [0048]-[0051] and [0083]-[0085]);;

performing said transaction at said third entity, and digitally transferring via a computer communication medium said digital merchandise to said first entity computer via a computer associated with a delivering entity comprising information operable to deliver said digital merchandise to said first entity via a computer communication medium without revealing said first sensitive information to said third entity (See Zucker paragraphs [0048]-[0051], [0083]-[0085], and [0113]-[0119]).

11. What Zucker does not clearly disclose, is the transmission of the digital or electronic goods over a computer communication network rather than physical delivery of such goods via CD-ROM, DVD, or any other medium that needs a physical delivery. However, Chung clearly teaches the delivery of such digital and electronic goods via a computer communication network as well as keeping the receiver of such goods anonymous to the sender as it has thought be Zucker as to obfuscate the delivery address of the receiver (See Chung figure 16, paragraphs [0057], [0102], [0129], [0196], [0213]. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the current invention was made for the motivation of the privacy, speed of delivery and as well as economical gains of saving the costs related to physical delivery.

12. As per claims 6-9 and 10-23, Zucker clearly teaches a method according to claim 1 wherein said method further comprises a second intermediate entity operable to receive second sensitive information from said third entity and operable to process said second sensitive information and operable to create second non sensitive information operable to be sent to said first entity without revealing said second sensitive information said second non sensitive information operable to approve said transaction and such different combination of entities to obfuscate the original entity (See Zucker paragraphs [0126]-[0127]).

13. As per claims 24-25, Zucker clearly teaches a method according to claim 1 wherein said method further comprises a third intermediate entity operable to receive third sensitive information from said third entity and operable to process said second sensitive information and operable to create third non sensitive information operable to be sent to a fourth entity without revealing said third sensitive information, said third non sensitive information operable to approve said transaction (See Zucker paragraphs [0033]-[0051], [0056]-[0067], [0083]-[0085], and [0113]-0119)).

14. As per claims 2-5, Zucker clearly teaches a method according to claim 1, what Zucker is not explicit about is the said merchandise comprises digital video, audio, and software content. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the current invention was made to consider the merchandise or the item to be delivered is in digital form for the motivation of the additional flexibility of delivery as well as enhanced choices of merchandise.

15. Examiner has pointed out particular references contained in the prior arts of record in the body of this action for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the response, to consider fully the entire references as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior arts or disclosed by the examiner.

Conclusion

16. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
